

Julian Go

POLICING EMPIRES:

RACE, MILITARIZATION AND THE BOOMERANG EFFECT IN THE U.S. AND BRITAIN

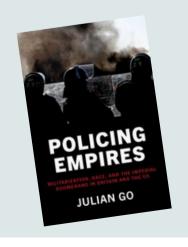

MONDAY, JANUARY 27 12:00-1:30PM WALLIS ANNENBERG CONFERENCE ROOM (SSMS 4315)

Julian Go is Professor and Chair of the Department of Sociology and in the College at the University of Chicago, where he is also a Faculty Affiliate of the Committee on International Relations and the Center for the Study of Race, Politics & Culture. His books and articles on empire, colonialism and postcolonial theory have won prizes from the American Sociological Association, the Eastern Sociological Society, the American Political Science Association, and the International Studies Association, among other institutions. He is the winner of Lewis A. Coser Award for Theoretical Agenda Setting in Sociology given by the American Sociological Association. In 2021-2022, Julian served as the President of the Social Science History Association.

Talk Summary:

This talk offers a postcolonial historical sociology of police militarization in Britain and the United States. It tracks when, why, and how British and US police departments have adopted military tactics, tools, and technologies for domestic use since the founding of modern policing in the nineteenth century into the present. It shows that militarization is an effect of the "imperial boomerang": police officials import the mindsets, means and methods of empire as they regulate and repress racialized populations at home.

This talk is cosponsored by the UCSB Sociology Department's 24/25 Distinguished Speakers Series and Asian American Studies. For questions, please contact Tristan Bridges (tbridges@soc.ucsb.edu).